

Flindersia bennettiana (Bennett's Ash)

Semi-deciduous tree with smooth, gray bark. White, 5-petalled flowers to 8mm, in terminal or axillary panicles, spring to summer, have a dough-like scent. Oblong woody seed capsules to 8cm, covered in blunt spines, splitting into 5 boat-shaped segments. It is a rainforest tree in the citrus family. Previously used in construction of boats and cabinet and joinery work. It occurs mainly in streamside, seaside or subtropical rainforest.

Type: Tree to 15+m
Aspect: Full Sun
Soil: Adaptable
Habitat: Wet Sclerophyll

Special features:

- Attracts –
 - Birds
- Timber Tree